TONS OF GOLD

In the New York Sub-Treasury and it is Stored in Stacks.

HOW IT IS COUNTED AND WEIGHED.

John Winchell, the Greatest Gold Expert in the World, is There, and He Can Handle $1,000,000 in Double Eagles in a Day--The Silver and Certificate Vaults.

New York Press.

Coming at a time when shipments of gold from this port are so enormous, a visit to the city's greatest storage place for the precious metal is particularly interesting. It is the sub-treasury on Wall street. By the courtesy of Assistant Treasurer Ellis H. Roberts a representative of the Press was permitted to pass through the room where millions are counted weekly and watch the shining coins slip under the deft lingers of the counters before they were put into bags and stored away with the millions in the vaults.

The gold and silver coins are counted and examined in the room on the east side of the building, while the minor coins, nickels and pennies are handled in the room on the west side. Bags of money come in from all over the country to be exchanged for silver or gold certificates. The theory is that all the coins are sorted before they are sent to the sub-treasury; but depositors sometimes forget this, and the coins are received in sad mixtures—pennies, nickels, dimes and silver and gold of all denominations jumbled together in one bag. They must, of course, be sorted into denominations before they can be counted. Most of them come from railroads and other large corporations, and the companies which own the drop a cent in the slot machines send bags and bags of minor coin. The gold and silver coins are counted and bags of minor coin.

THE MEN WHO COUNT THE COINS. Mr. John Winchell is the gold expert of the sub-treasury. For nineteen years he has stood at one bench in the gold room, slipping the yellow shiners from the bench into his hand and from his hand into the big scales and thence into canvass bags. His years of experience have given him an adroitness that places him at the head of gold handlers. Mr. Winchell is to-day the best gold coin expert in the world. He is also the most rapid counter of coins in the sub-treasury, where rapidity is second only to precision as a requirement. On last Tuesday he examined and counted, verifying his count by weight afterward $500,000 in gold. This is a good day's work, but Mr. Winchell has counted $1,000,000 in double eagles between 9 o'clock in the morning and 4 in the afternoon. years he has stood at one bench in the ternoon. "Look here," Mr. Winchell said, tak "Look here." Mr. Winchell said, taking a five dollar gold piece from his pocket and throwing it into a pile of similar coins, "that coin is two grains too heavy. Now, I'll lose it in the others, like this," stirring the mass of gold with his hand. "Now find it."

Spreading the coins out on the bench a search was made for it. No one found it until Mr. Winchell pieked it up from under the searchers' noses.

under the searchers' noses.

"You can readily see," continued the expert, "that nofingers could be trained to perfect accuracy. But the eye is quick and accurate to detect a coin which deviates from the United States along the United States. standard. This is a counterfeit of gold and platinum."

After the coins are counted they are After the coins are counted they are dumped into a scale and balanced with a weight of eighteen pounds six onnces for every $5,000. Then they are placed in bags which are marked and stored in the realt down stirs. University the vault down stairs. Light weight coins are marked L and returned to the sender. They are then good as bullion Counterfeits are mutilated and only. Counterfeits are mutilated and returned also. For the good gold cer-tificates are issued. But if there is wealth here in the

But if there is wealth here in the counting room how much more there is in the vault where the gold is stored.

This is just off the large room where the clerical work is done. The four walls of the vault are lined with small lockers, each one of which is capable of holding half a million in gold coin. The aggregate is a tremendous sum of money. Think of it! When the vault is filled there are $136,000,000 in this room alone. Only seventy-five or eighty alone. Only seventy-five or eighty millions were there when the reporter called.

When the treasury people speak of a half a million by weight they say "a ton," but in exact figures this sum weighs 1,859 pounds. This makes 3,-700 pounds to the million dollars. So when the gold vault is filled it contains the exceptions, weight of 502,200,000 enormous weight of 503,200,000

On the side of the building opposite to this is the vault where the certificates are stored.

The first thing noticed by the visitor to this room is the peculiar odor. It is the smell of millions of dollars of the promissory notes of the United States. This room also is lined with lockers, This room also is lined with lockers, which in this instance are filled with neat bundles of notes. The artist looked at a bundle of $10,000 silver certificates which Cashier Muller placed in his hand and feebly gasped out, "How much is there in it?" He had to be supported when he learned that he was holding $10,000,000 in one hand. He feebly remarked that he could carry it away with case. But his too evident desire met with no encouragement, so he reluctantly handed the package back to Mr. Muller, and took his regenge by making a picture of that genial gentlemen as he sat on the table with the $10,000,000 in his hand, explaining that there were $60,000,000 in with the cool, on the said, explaining that there were $60,000,000 in the room.

"Now we'll go the silver vault," said Mr. Muller. "There is more weight down there, but not so much value." In going down the stairs which led to the silver vault, the vaults where the pennies and nickels are stored were pennies all counted and packed in bags and stored away as carefully as the coins of greater value.

greater value. TONS OF SILVER STORED IN GLOOMY CELLARS. The silver vault is a rather gloomy place, lighted with several gas jets, which are kept continually burning. It looks like a huge wine cellar, only that instead of bottles of rare old grapes and sunlight, there are rows on rows of can-sunlight, there are rows on rows of canvas bags, each bag containing $1,000.

The vault is separated into bins, whose sides are made of iron. So great is the pressure of the silver that these iron sides have been bent by the weight against them. Forty thousand dollars only was in the vault, but is not more than half its capacity.

It is the custom of the assistant cashier, when escorting young ladies through the silver vault, to offer each one of them three bags of the coins if she can carry them away at one time. THE BARBOUR OBSEQUIES Conducted by Catholic Clergimen in the Senate-An Imposing Scene. WASHINGTON, D. C., May 16 .- To-day, for the second time within less than six months, the United States senate was called upon to mourn the loss of one of its members, and to pay last tribute of respect to the memory of the late Senator John S. Barbour, of Virginia.

The remains, in a black cloth casket, The remains, in a black cloth casket, were brought to the capital at 11 a.m., and were deposited in the senate chamber, where the capitol police stood guard over them. The chamber was arranged for the ceromonies in the usual manner. The chair; occupied last Friday by the dead senator was draped in black. The chaplain's opening prayer had only one direct allusion to the occasion, in rendering of thanks for the true and faithful life spared so long.

Immediately after the journal of Friday last was read, Mr. Kenna rose and formally announced, in the absence, on account of sickness, of Senator Daniel, of Virginia, the death of General Barbour. He proceeded with a personal sketch of the dead, the story of his sudden taking off and warm words of eulogy for the man and his character. Mr. Kenna closed with the usual resolutions of respect, when a committee of Mr. Kenna closed with the usual resolutions of respect, when a committee of nine senators had been named to accompany remains to Virginia. Recess was had at 12:50 p. m.

Although the dead senator was not a professing member of church denomination his wife had been a Catholic: nation his wife had been a Catholic; and the religious ceremonies were to be conducted, at the request of the family, by Bishop Keane, rector of the Catholic university. This was the first occasion in the memory of the oldest officer of the senate and perhaps in fact, when the Catholic clergy officiated in such manner in the senate.

At 12:55 the members of the house entered the chamber, followed by the supreme court judges and members of the cabinet, Mr. Harrison being out of town. Then came the members of the dead senator's family, near friends, and nation his wife had been a Catholic;

While the fumes from the censor rose in the air. Father Gillespie, of the church of St. Aloysius, read the prayers for the dead. Then Bishop Keane, wearing the purple robes of his office, took his stand at the foot of the coffin to deliver the funeral sermon. During his sermon the bishop said:

When about six years ago Senator Barbour (shortly after the death of his saintly and beloved wife) gave him to understand that soon "we would be fellow-Catholics" hē (the bishop) had rejoiced that the lustre which the senator's civic virtues reflected on his state, was likewise to be shared in by the old was likewise to be shared in by the old church of all ares. The services being concluded in the chamber, the remains were removed to the late residence of the deceased, and then on motion of Senator Manderson, the senate adjourned.

The Sworn Tormentors of the Inquisition What cared they for the groans of the victim as he lay stretched upon the rack? Yet people whose hearts are neither as hard as the nether mitl stone, nor whose fortitude is excessive often have no pity on themselves-voluntarily the most agontzing and obstinate of complaints, is, perhaps, more frequently neglected in its incipiency than any other, the preliminary twinges being set down to the credit of "a cold in the bones," which will pass away of itself. Singular fatuity—faral delusion!
